IRAQ'S AGRO-FOOD MARKET AT A GLANCE

Agriculture and rural life in Iraq have gone through several changes in the past few decades. The region is characterized by high population growth, urbanization, and water scarcity, which poses a challenge to maintaining food security and production.

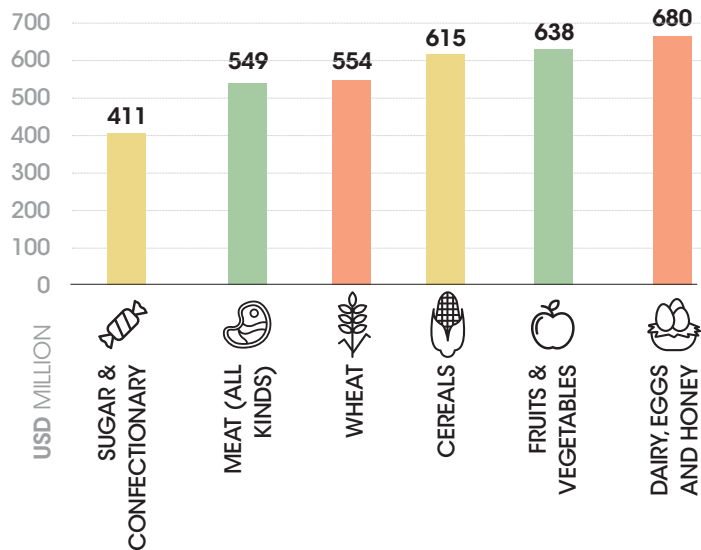

Iraq's agricultural production is almost solely for the domestic market, and imports far exceed exports. Agricultural exports are minimal and have been of comparatively little value in contrast to imports.

In 2016, Iraq imported $6.7 billion in food and agricultural products while exporting $129 million worth of agricultural products.

- Iraq is largely dependent on food imports
- Wheat and barley are the most strategic crops for the country
- USDA projected that Iraq will require 4.9 million tons of wheat imports annually by 2024-2025

MEET IRAQ'S AGRO-FOOD DEMAND

Iraq Agro-Food Baghdad is a specialized exhibition dedicated for agro-food products and technology. With a deep-rooted focus on boosting Iraq's agro-food sector, the trade fair will cover all aspects of the food production cycle, and will showcase innovative solutions and investment opportunities to transform this sector, and help attain food security.

Held in Iraq's business hub at the Baghdad International Fair Ground, the exhibition will bring together local, regional, and international industry professionals to showcase agricultural produce, specialized equipment and machinery, and discuss the latest developments in this vital sector.

Given that Iraq is heavily-dependent on food imports, Iraq Agro-Food Baghdad is the ideal place to meet a large concentration of importers, distributors, and buyers seeking to source products, equipment, and new technologies. It also provides the opportunity to connect to decision-makers from the private and public sectors to discuss potential partnerships.

WHY EXHIBIT?

- Gain access to abundant investment opportunities in Iraq's agro-food sector
- Meet potential buyers and distributors and sign agreements on the spot
- Introduce your products, equipment, and services into a highly-demanding market
- Network with government officials and high-ranking decision-makers to seal partnerships
- Generate genuine sales leads and expand your business network
- Discover the latest developments and trends in the industry straight from the source
