Introduction:

Study the past, if you would divine the future.

(Confucius)
"Business history is littered with the corpses of once great companies who missed the trends in the business environment and their own markets which were shaping the future. The past can provide, by way of analogies, and understanding of what today's companies ought to avoid and what they could aspire to. If we combine analysis of what the past and present can tell us with our own imagination and intuition, we should be able to make reasonable assumptions about how the world will develop and how our organization could succeed in it, without over optimism or arrogance."
(Seize the future for your business), Beth Rogers, first edition 1998.

The Region of Kurdistan: History and Life

The Iraqi Kurdistan Region is a federal region that is located in the north of the Iraqi Republic. The region is officially recognized by the Federal Government of Iraq through the Iraqi Constitution that has been issued in 2005 after endorsing it through a national referendum.

Geography:

The Kurdistan Region comprises parts of the three governorates of Erbil, Suleimaniah and Duhok.

The Region borders Syria to the west, Iran to the east, and Turkey to the north, lying where fertile plains meet the Zagros mountains. It is traversed by the Sirwan river and the Tigris and its tributaries, the Great Zab and the Little Zab.

Area: 40,643 square kilometers.

Capital city: Erbil (also known as Hewler). The city of Erbil is the fourth largest city in Iraq. Urban life at Erbil can be dated back to at least the twenty-third century BC.

The mountains of the Kurdistan Region have an average height of about 2,400 metres, rising to 3,000–3,300 meters in places. The highest peak, Halgurd, is near the border with Iran and measures 3,660 meters. The highest mountain ridges contain the only forestland in the Region.
Annual rainfall is 375-724mm. The climate of the Kurdistan Region is semi-arid continental: very hot and dry in summer, and cold and wet in winter.

Kurdish Year

2017 equals 2717 of Kurdish year

Spring is the most beautiful season in Kurdistan and the time when Kurds celebrate Nawroz, the Kurdish New Year, on the spring or vernal equinox. Mean high temperatures range from 13-18 degrees in March to 27-32 degrees in May.

The summer months from June to September are very hot and dry. In July and August, the hottest months, mean highs are 39-43 degrees, and often reach nearly 50 degrees.

Autumn is dry and mild, and like spring is an ideal time of year to travel in the Region. Average temperatures are 24-29 degrees in October, cooling slightly in November.

Winters are mild, except in the high mountains. Mean winter high temperatures are 7-13 degrees Celsius, and mean lows are 2-7 degrees Celsius.
Demography:

Population: Nearly 5.3 million.

Population in each of the Region’s three provinces:
Erbil: 1,853,561
Suleimaniah: 1,950,869
Dohuk: 1,476,809

The people living in the Kurdistan Region are Kurds as well as Turkmen, Assyrians, Chaldeans, Armenians and Arabs.

The Region has a young and growing population, with 36% aged 0-14 years, and only 4% aged over 63. The median age in Kurdistan is just over 20, meaning more than 50% are less than 20.

The Kurdistan Region’s demography has changed considerably in the last few decades mainly because of forced migration by the previous Iraqi government, which is one of the main reasons for the movement from the countryside to towns and cities. By 2001, at least 600,000 people were internally displaced mainly because of the previous Iraqi regime’s policies since the 1970s. This included more than 100,000 people expelled in November 1991 alone from Kirkuk by the Iraqi government. According to a UNDP survey, 66% of people living in Duhok province have been forced to change their residence due to war at any point in their lives, while the figures in Suleimaniah and Erbil are 31% and 7%, respectively.

Traditionally, the majority of people in the Kurdistan Region lived in villages and survived on farming and animal husbandry of mainly sheep and goats thanks to the land’s fertile soil. The Region was known as the breadbasket of Iraq. Today this has reversed, with the majority living and working in the three cities of Erbil, Duhok and Suleimaniah and working in the government, construction, and trade.

Languages:

Kurdish, the most widely spoken language in the Region, is in the Indo-European family of languages.

The Kurdistan Region’s official languages for government purposes are Kurdish and Arabic. The two most widely spoken dialects of Kurdish are Sorani and Kurmanji. Other dialects spoken by smaller numbers are Hawrami (also known as Gorani) and Zaza. Kurdistan Region is located in the mid of Middle East and the countries which surround are: Turkey, Iran, Syria and the rest of Iraq. The languages of these countries have noticeable influences on the cultural and Economy as well as the political situations in such way that the Turkish and Persian languages are well known. English language is wide spread in the sectors of education and the Business environment which could be said that this language is the no one in the spoken communication among the businessmen. There are other European languages which increasingly spreading particularly the German and French languages.

The Sorani Kurdish dialect uses Arabic script while the Kurmanji Kurdish dialect is written in Latin script. Sorani is spoken in the cities of Erbil and Suleimaniah, while Kurmanji is spoken in Duhok. As the Region’s Kurdish-language media has developed and the population has moved, today nearly all people in the Kurdistan Region can speak or understand both of the major dialects. The Kurdistan Regional Government’s policy is to promote the two main dialects in the education system and the media.

Arabic is also an official language and is widely spoken or understood. Turkmani, Assyrian Neo-Aramaic, and Chaldean Neo-Aramaic are also spoken by their respective communities.

The Kurdistan Regional Government promotes linguistic diversity and rights, and schools have been established that teach mainly in Turkmen, Assyrian Neo-Aramaic, and Chaldean Neo-Aramaic, and Arabic.
Religious freedom and tolerance:

The majority of people in the Kurdistan Region are Sunni Muslims, mainly of the Shafī‘i school. Some Muslims in the Region follow Sufi orders.

There are also a large number of Christians of different churches, such as Syrian Catholic, Syrian Orthodox, Assyrian Church of the East, Armenian, and Catholic Chaldean.

A religion that is practiced only in Kurdistan is Yazidism, which has tens of thousands of adherents.

The Kurdistan Regional Government protects people’s freedom to practice their religion and promotes inter-faith tolerance.

A Historical Background:

There are many historic and factsheets about the Kurds and almost all these indicate that the oldest inhabitants who settled in the large area of Kurdistan are Kurds with different tribes and nomads, as the historic books point out. It deserves mentioning to show some resources which searche the origin of Kurdish Nation are as following:

1- “Grosse Welt Geschichte” in German language, written by group of British and European researchers, a project sponsored by The Times. Published in Brussels, 1995.
In this book the writers are indicating to the origins of the first Human who began the agriculture activity which is supposed to be the first Civilization of Human being, the area which they are pointing out to the Jericho in the Mesopotamia (Tigris and Euphrates)

2. The History of Kurdish Language:

The unprejudiced academics that study Kurdish history are united in the view that the Kurds are an ancient race (1). The Kurds have lived for many thousands of year’s -even longer than written documentation can reflect-in a land that has been described as the 'cradle of human civilisation'. We need only think of Jewish and Islamic mythology, which designates Mount Judi (Cudi) in Kurdistan as the resting place of Noah's ark (2); we know from history that in the land of the Kurds and its surrounding territories numerous advanced civilisations existed, such as that of Mesopotamia, of the Hittites, the Hurrites; the Karduchi, the Mittanis, the Parthians, and the Sassanids.

Additionally, many of the world's major religions have found their place in the land of the Kurds, such as, for example, Mithraism (the Cult of the Sun), Mazdaism (Zoroastrianism), mystery religions, Judaism, Christianity, Manichaeism, and Islam. Even today in Kurdistan one finds a large number of Kurdo-syncretic religious communities (3) such as the Ezidi, Kakayi (Yarsan or Ali-Haqq, or 'People of Truth'), Alevi, Shabak, Sarayi, Bajwan, Haqqa, etc., all of whom bear witness to the fact that the Kurds are the heirs of a vastly rich cultural heritage.

The Kurds have played a remarkable role in the history of the Orient, both before and after the rise of Islam in the seventh century. After the partial islamification of the Kurds, Moslem Kurds participated in the foundation of the Arabian, Persian, and Turkish Dynasties with a degree of selflessness seldom seen in any other people. To cite just a few examples: The founding of the Abbasid Dynasty on the part of the revolutionary Kurd Abu Muslim Khorasani in the year 750 C.E., Saladin (1137--1193) and his reversal of the conquest of Palestine by the Crusaders in the twelfth century; the foundation of the Safavid Dynasty (1501/ 2-1736) at the start of the 16th century by Ismail Shah Safi, son of the Kurd Sheikh Safi, leader of an order of Dervishes, and last, but not least the foundation of the Ottoman Empire, which was supported by the majority of the independent Kurdish principalities. They formally united with the Ottoman Dynasty in 1515, after the famous battle of Chaldiran, in which the Ottomans, with the help of the Kurds, defeated the Persians. Thus the Ottoman Empire began.

The military and political achievements of the Kurds on behalf of their neighbours were not all; the outstanding contributions of Kurdish scholars and artists in enriching Arabic, Persian, and Turkish culture (4), and their contribution to the wealth of Islam was so great, that of the four people designated by the famous Moslem scholar Ghazzali as 'pillars of the Islamic culture', three are Kurds (5). The fact that the Kurds for centuries didn't concentrate their efforts on the foundation of their own State, or the cultivation of their own language and culture, drew the attention of outsiders. The Ottoman Turk chronicler Shamsaddin Sami wrote in the last century in his lexicon 'Qamus EI-Aalam' (Dictionary of Names):

'All of the educated Kurds occupied themselves with the Arabic and Persian language, while ignoring their own language'(6).

Just one example: The Kurdish Moslem scholar Sheikh Marifi Node (yi) Barzinji (1733-1838) was the author of more than 46 considerable works in Arabic and Persian language (7). These works were on jurisprudence, ethics, theology, astronomy, philology and literature. Node (yi) Barzinji lived to the age of 85 and wrote only one book in Kurdish. It was a small Arabic-Kurdish glossary of some hundred words. In the introduction to this work, Barzinji tells us in Persian language why he wrote it. I cite him: "In order that my son Ahmad will be able to learn Arabic vocabulary more easily. Therefore, I have named the book Ahmadia."(8).

It is very interesting to notice that within those Kurdish principalities that were governed by independent Kurdish dynasties such as, for example, Hasnavi (founded 959)(9), Dostaki (990 - 1096)(10), etc., the Kurdish language was not used as the official written language. It remained however, the language of the people and was the main means of communication between the people and their rulers. This neglect and lack of concern caused negative repercussions for the Kurds, which can still be felt today. It is not entirely clear why the educated Kurds invested their intellectual 'capital' on others' soil, so to speak. We only want to expound briefly on this theme, as it belongs to another chapter, to which as well, belongs the question of why educated Kurds were not able (or not willing) to import others' capital into Kurdistan in order to make their own people more 'Arabic' or 'Persian'.

2- Karl May is a famous German writer who could leave a respectful position in the mentality of the German, European and world readers. May is famous in his accurate and fantastic discriptions of the People and places where he never visited. One of his masterpiece is the "Durch Wilde Kurdistan" (through wild Kurdistan).

3- A scientific research which accomplished by a group of European archeologists under the title "The Eden on Earth", this research has been issued in the German "Der Spiegel" magazine in its No of March 2003 the group has reached to the conclusion that the most ancient civilization which started in the history of Mankind is in three places on the Earth: one of these three is in KURDISTAN.
Modern Kurdistan History:

To understand the background for establishing the Kurdistan Region, it is important to realize the modern history of Iraq. During the Ottoman Empire, the state which is currently is known as Iraq was composed of three provinces (Vilayet): Mosul, Baghdad, and Basra. Today, these provinces are represented in Iraq as respectively: the north, the middle, and the south. After the World War I, the Iraqi Kingdom was established. Based on the fact that Iraq was previously three separate provinces, the rulers of those days tried their best to integrate these three provinces together to maintain the unified state of Iraq. However, the different parts of Iraq did not have equal shares in terms of infrastructure and development foundations. Most of these projects were concentrated in the centre, especially in the Iraqi capital Baghdad. The other parts of Iraq were severely neglected by the continuous governments ruled Iraq. As an example, although dams were constructed in the north, the main reasons for constructing these dams were not to develop the infrastructure in the northern area while to control the level of water of the Tigris and the Euphrates from flood and to generate electricity that was particularly feeding the center.

After the revolution of 14th July 1958 by Abdulkareem Qassim overthrow of the monarchy, Iraq became a republic. Iraq was ruled by a military government with pro-socialism ideologies. The unstable situation in Iraq continued from that date with a number of revolutions and assassinations. On 17th July 1968 another revolution had taken place in Iraq, but this revolution dramatically changed the history of Iraq. On that date the Arabic Baath Party came into power and a darker era of Iraq has started. The first Baathist president of Iraq was Ahmed Hassan Al-Bakir and his deputy was Saddam Hussein. In 1979, Saddam Hussein overthrew Al-Bakir and he became the president that ruled Iraq for about 34 years. The catastrophic suffering of the people of Iraq started from that date. Iraq entered different wars that destroyed the economy of the country.

In 1981, the Iraqi Iranian war started that lasted for eight years. This war exhausted economy of the country and damaged the infrastructure. It is expected that this war caused the death of about 1,000,000 people. After only two years from seizing the war between Iraq and Iran, on 3rd August 1990 Iraq invaded Kuwait. The international community contaminated the invasion and endorsed a United Nations resolution that obliges Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait. The dictator of Iraq refused to withdraw and this leaded Iraq to another war. In 1991 the forces of about thirty countries headed by the United States attacked Iraq and liberated Kuwait. The infrastructure of Iraq was severely damaged during that war. Also, in order to make sure that Iraqi dictator will not repeat another of his adventures, the United Nations issued a resolution that forces Iraq to destroy all of its mass destruction weapons. Iraq refused to do that, as a result the United Nations issued another resolution that puts Iraq under the international embargo that prevented Iraq from exporting its oil and importing all kinds of goods including food and medical requirements. This further increased the suffering of the Iraqi people, it added the economic suffering in addition to the repression of the regime.
During the 1991 war, a national uprising took place in the north and south of Iraq. The uprising in the south was leaded by the Shiite; however the uprising was soon brutally crushed by the former regime forces. The regime also tried to crush the uprising in the north as well. The Iraqi Army started to attack the cities in the north without distinguishing the civilians form armed people. The people of the north fled from the brutal forces of the regime and about a million of civilian people were crowded on the borders of Iraq with each of Iran and Turkey. This displacement took place in the winter and the humanitarian situation of these people on the borders was extremely miserable. This situation forced the United Nations to issue another resolution which endorsed the no fly zone in the Northern of Iraq. Then the Iraqi Army withdrew from the northern part of Iraq. According to this resolution the Iraqi Army was prevented from entering the northern part of Iraq. The people gradually returned back to their home and the region gradually started to establish its parliament and government. The region was for the first time ruled by its own people. This government was officially not recognized neither by the Iraqi regime nor by the international community.

In 2003, the Iraqi freedom war took place and put an end for 34 years of dictatorship ruling for the country. A new era started in Iraq where the people started to freely elect their government for the first time. The region of Kurdistan was officially recognized by the Iraqi government through the Iraqi constitution in 2005.
About the foreign representatives in KRG

The Kurdistan Region is a federated region in Iraq. Its main institutions are the Kurdistan Regional Government, the Kurdistan Region Presidency, and the Kurdistan Parliament. As stipulated in Iraq’s federal constitution, Kurdistan’s institutions exercise legislative and executive authority in many areas, including allocating the Regional budget, policing and security, education and health policies, natural resources management and infrastructure development.

Currently, about 32 countries have official Consulates and representations in the region. KRG has also 12 representations in different countries around the World.

Kurdistan Region Presidency:

The Kurdistan Region Presidency (KRP) was promulgated as an institution by the Kurdistan Parliament in 2005. The President of the Kurdistan Region has the highest executive authority. He or she is elected by secret ballot in a popular vote every four years and can stand for election for a second term.

Mr Masoud Barzani, the current president, was elected as the Kurdistan Region’s first president on 31 January 2005 by the Kurdistan Parliament, and re-elected by secret popular ballot by the people of the Kurdistan Region in July 2009, with 70% of the vote. The Deputy President is Mr Kosrat Rasul Ali. The President’s secretariat, called the Diwan, is headed by the Chief of Staff.

The President represents the people of Kurdistan at national and international levels and oversees relations and coordination between the Region and the Iraqi federal authorities. He also represents the people of Kurdistan at Iraq’s Political Council for National Security, and in negotiations and consultations with other parties in Iraq. H.E Barzani is also the General Chief Peshmarga Forces.

He is responsible for approving the KRG Prime Minister’s special appointments and promotions, and for ratifying all laws passed by the Kurdistan Parliament. He has the power to return once only for further debate and amendment any law passed by the Parliament.
His Excellency President of Kurdistan Region
Massoud Barzani
The Kurdistan Parliament is the Kurdistan Region’s democratically elected legislature. The parliament consists of one elected chamber. Its three main functions are:

- to examine proposals for new laws
- to scrutinize government policy and administration
- to debate the major issues of the day.

The founding principles of the parliament are liberty, pluralism, accountability, openness and the representation of all peoples in the Kurdistan Region.

Structure of the Parliament:
There are 111 seats in the Assembly (as stipulated in Law No. 1 passed in 1992).

In February 2009 several amendments were made to the Kurdistan election law to increase inclusiveness of all groups. The minimum age of parliamentary candidates was lowered from 30 to 25. While seats had already been reserved in previous elections for minority communities, for the Christian and Turkmen communities this was increased to five seats each. The legal minimum quota of women MPs was increased from 25 percent to 30 percent of the legislature. In the current parliament, 36 of the 111 MPs are women.

Parliament’s beginnings:
In the aftermath of the 1991 Gulf War, Saddam Hussein withdrew his forces and administration from parts of the Kurdistan Region. Faced with an administrative vacuum and a double embargo, the Kurdistan Front, an alliance of diverse political groups opposed to the Ba’ath dictatorship, organised a general election. Their goal was to establish an administration and fulfill the population’s strong desire to choose its representatives.

The election on 19 May 1992 was the first free and fair parliamentary election in the history of Iraq. Voter turnout was very high and the elections were deemed to be free, fair, and democratic by international observers. After decades of dictatorship, the people in Kurdistan were able to choose their representatives. This regional election led to the formation of the first Kurdistan National Assembly (later renamed the Kurdistan Parliament) and the establishment of the KRG. The leadership and the people of the Kurdistan Region decided to remain part of Iraq, and to adopt and abide by all national laws except for those that violated human and universal rights.

Parliamentary elections:
Elections for the Kurdistan Parliament are held at least every four calendar years, (as stipulated in Article 8 of the Kurdistan Electoral Law). Anyone aged 18 or over who is a citizen of the Kurdistan Region and is on the electoral register is eligible to vote in a direct, universal and secret ballot. Elections for the Kurdistan Parliament are based on a closed party-list proportional representation system. Electors vote for a party’s list of candidates, rather than for an individual candidate. After the election results are announced, each party is allocated seats in proportion to the number of votes it received, using the ranking order of candidates on its list.

Powers of the Kurdistan Parliament:
As provided in the federal constitution of Iraq, parliament has considerable power to debate and legislate on policy in a wide range of areas: health services, education and training, policing and security, the environment, natural resources, agriculture, housing, trade, industry and investment, social services and social affairs, transport and roads, culture and tourism, sport and leisure, and ancient monuments and historic buildings. The Kurdistan Parliament shares legislative power with the federal authorities in the following areas, but priority is given to the Kurdistan Parliament’s laws: customs, electric energy and its distribution, general planning, internal water resources.

In addition, under Article 121 of the Iraqi federal constitution the Kurdistan Parliament has the right to amend the application of Iraq-wide legislation that falls outside of the federal authorities’ exclusive powers.

Landmark legislation passed by the Kurdistan Parliament:

The Kurdistan Parliament has passed several laws that have contributed to the Region’s social and economic progress. These include:

- passing a modern and open investment law;
- passing a progressive hydrocarbons (oil and gas) law for the Kurdistan Region;
- significantly increasing the prison sentence for those committing so-called honor killings, which were previously given minimum sentences.
- placing limits on the practice of polygamy.

The Kurdistan Parliament approved by a large majority a constitution for the Kurdistan Region, and intends to put it to a referendum in the future.
Kurdistan Regional Government:

The democratically elected Kurdistan Regional Government (KRG) exercises executive power according to the Kurdistan Region’s laws, as enacted by the Kurdistan Parliament.

The current government, led by Prime Minister Nechirwan Barzani, His Deputy is Mr Qubad Talabani. The government coalition consists of several political parties, reflecting the diversity of the Region’s people, who are Kurds, Turkmen, Chaldeans, Assyrians, Yazidis and others living together in harmony and tolerance.

The government has 19 ministries. The KRG is based in Erbil, the capital of the Kurdistan Region. It administers the governorates of Erbil, Suleimaniah, Dohuk and Halabja.

The KRG’s Program:

Renewal and reconstruction
Prime Minister Nechirwan Barzani at his swearing-in ceremony announced the policies of the KRG cabinet, building on the achievements made by the previous one. He said that the KRG will not stand still upon its achievements and will work for change, revival and reform.

The Eighth cabinet has the responsibility to:

- protect and expand upon the achievements of the previous cabinet,
- maintain several critical initiatives of the previous cabinet in terms of administrative and financial reform, and
- resolve the shortcomings that we have not yet been able to tackle.

Transparency and reform
The seven cabinet will fight against corruption, through the rule of law and transparency in government activity. The Minister of Justice will also shoulder the duty of Public Prosecutor; ensuring that dossiers of corruption and mismanagement of public funds will be sent to court. The KRG will put an end to political party interference in governmental affairs. It will also work to create the necessary atmosphere for political activity and the development of multi-party traditions, by amending the laws pertaining to parties and communities, and also by issuing a law regarding political party funding.

The KRG will build on the Kurdistan Region’s considerable economic progress and improved living standards by further developing education and higher education, health, agriculture, irrigation and roads, and by resolving the housing problems for low-income citizens, increasing the income level of the individual and the living standards of the lower class. The public budget will be allocated according to the principles of balance and fairness, to meet the needs and requirements of the entire Kurdistan Region without prejudice. The KRG will work for precise transparent monitoring through the Parliament Audit Committees, and will strive to diversify the sources of income and disclose its expenditure. The KRG aims to establish an integrity commission for monitoring and investigation, and to pass a law requiring properties of officials to be made public.
This will improve financial policy, help to tackle corruption and establish better transparency in government activity.

The KRG will continue its policy of having good stable relationships with its neighbors, based on the principles of mutual interest. Faithful to the Kurdistan Region’s friends and supporters, the KRG will strengthen its already strong ties with our allies in Operation Iraqi Freedom as well as the wider international community, with the aim of achieving our mutual goals.
Recognition of the Anfal genocide:

The victims of the Anfal genocide and the Halabja bombardment should never be forgotten. The KRG will lobby international decision makers for officially recognition of the Iraqi Special Tribunal’s ruling that these crimes were acts of genocide. We will also endeavor to implement the decision to compensate the victims of the Anfal campaign and those who were affected by chemical weapons. The KRG will continue to bring back to Kurdistan the remains of the Anfal victims found in the mass graves in the middle and the south of Iraq, and to build deserved monuments of remembrance to them.

Participation of the young and women in political life

The government will promote political freedom and public determination. We will encourage civil society and the media to play a greater and more constructive role in promoting public opinion and expanding the circle of democracy. Young people and women will be given the encouragement and space to participate in the Kurdistan Region’s political decisions. The KRG sees young people as valuable assets. The future of Kurdistan will be guaranteed through their development and provision of opportunities for them, whether within government or within society. The KRG will create space for capable and qualified youth.
Why invest in Kurdistan Region?

The Kurdistan Region is an emerging market offering excellent opportunities

- A stable security situation - not a single coalition soldier has lost their life nor a single foreigner been kidnapped in the area administered by the Kurdistan Regional Government.
- The Region has two international airports in Erbil and Suleimania with over 80 direct flights per week from Vienna, Frankfurt, Stockholm, Amsterdam, Dubai, Amman, Istanbul, Beirut, Cairo, Ankara, Tehran, Dusseldorf and several other charter flights to different destinations ...
- A liberal investment law, ratified in July 2006, offers foreign investors incentives including customs relief, tax holidays and the freedom to repatriate profits.
- A regulated banking & finance sector providing basic banking services.
- Attractive investment opportunities in agriculture, banking, communication, construction, education & training, energy, healthcare, professional services, oil & gas and tourism.
- The Kurdistan market although it is relatively an encouraging market as itself, this region should be considered as a gateway to the markets of the rest of Iraq and the neighboring countries. Our region can represent a portal point that connects these markets together to achieve the economic integration in the area.
- In addition to the above, the region has huge potentials in terms of petroleum, agriculture, and other natural resources. These resources could be ideal basics for economic activities and developments. It is believed that the region's reserves of oil are estimated to be about 45 billion barrels. While the estimated reserve of natural gas in the region is estimated to be about 3,575,000 m³.

Kurdistan’s investment law:

The Kurdistan Region investment law was passed in July 2006 and an Investment Board was created to manage and promote investment. The Draft of the law is inclusive at the end of this booklet.

The investment law is one of the friendliest to foreign investors in the entire Middle East. Some features of the law are:

- Foreign and local investors and capital are treated equally under the law (Article 3).
- Foreign and local investors are entitled to own all the capital of any project (Article 3).
- The government allocates free or reduced-price land to investment projects that fulfil the criteria (Article 4).
- Foreign investors are free to repatriate profits in full (Article 7).
- Foreign and local investors are equally entitled to buy and own land for investment purposes (Article 4).
- Investors get a 10-year non-custom tax break once they start production or service provision. Raw materials and equipment used in production also get customs relief (Article 5).
You will find the complete text law at the end of the Booklet.

The Kurdistan Region’s Investment Board, established in summer 2006, oversees and promotes foreign and local investment and is already issuing licenses to suitable investors. The Investment Board was established by the investment law to help carry out the law’s provisions and to facilitate strategically important investment projects
Universities in the Kurdistan Region:

There are 14 governmental universities in the Kurdistan Region. The three largest are Salahaddin University in Erbil, the University of Suleimani, and the University of Dohuk. They offer studies in various subjects leading to specialized diplomas, bachelors and masters degrees, and doctorates.

Salahaddin University was established in 1968 in the city of Suleimaniah, and was moved to the city of Erbil in 1981. After the Ba’ath regime withdrew its administration in the aftermath of the Gulf War, in 1992 the Kurdistan Regional Government established two big Universities in Sulaimani and Dohuk.
The other more recently established institutions are the University of Koya, Soran, American University of Duhok and Hawler Medical University.

Kurdistan Region also has 15 Private universities. The University of Kurdistan - in Hawler started its first academic year in September 2006. The only language of instruction at the university is English.

At the American University of Iraq - Sulaimani all instruction is in English. It offers an intensive English programme to prepare students for its first degree program, a Bachelors in business administration.

The other private university is Jihan University which has departments in all the Region main cities. The Universities and High education is regarded as one and most important sector and the priority of KRG for the future of the Region. The Ministry of scientific Research and High Education has a modern program to adopt the International Academic System for the Universities in the Region.
The American University in Duhok has recently established with a very modern building design and qualified staff of instruction.
Travelling to Kurdistan:

The Kurdistan Region has two international airports: Erbil International Airport and Suleimaniah International Airport. Most flights from Europe and the Middle East fly directly to Kurdistan, without going via Baghdad. Several IATA members scheduled carriers already fly to Erbil, and more IATA airlines are expected to start flights there. Several charter companies also operate flights to Erbil or Suleimaniah.

We believe that it will attract a large number of businessmen to invest there. The second and three free zones will be between our region and Iran in Bashmagh and Suliemaniya areas. These free zones with their incentives will be another important factor that strengthens investment and trade in our region.

Within the context of expanding trade and economic activities, Iraq has signed 48 protocols with our neighboring country Turkey from 2005 till 2011. It is anticipated that these protocols will significantly increase the size of trade and economic activities between Iraq and Turkey. Accordingly it is planned to implement additional two extra bridges on the border over the Khabour River between the two countries. These additional bridges are planned to cover the anticipated huge increase in trade through the Ibrahim Khalil land port. Licensing Plan for Private Sector Industrial Plant 2016:

Kurdistan Regional Government (KRG), as well as Iraq, is in a transition stage from a close economy to a liberal economic system, which opens up tremendous opportunities for private sector to play a great role in carrying out commercial activities and industrial process. Moreover, national per capita has increased dramatically in Kurdistan Region since 2000, which has led to increase demand in a local market. The KRG policy has been based on notion of supporting of private sector to play role in participating industrial production process and commercial activities at the same time the government intends to protect its investment in these fields. Accordingly, the private sector is responsible for supplying the market with the needed goods and requirements by establishing manufacturing plants and importing the goods from abroad.

In this connection, the total number of active industrial plants in Kurdistan Region increased near to (2200) plants in the end of September 2010, compared with (694) only during the whole period prior to the year 2003, particularly in period between 2006 to end of September 2010 more than (1500) licenses were issued.

Base on the KRG policy, the Ministry of Trade and Industry is encouraging and directing private sector toward production process and commercial activities, and for that it is working on setting up facilities to provide the sector with all kind of supports needed and preparing procedures to protect it from unfair competition so that the private sector can participate efficiently in the process of economic and social development as a whole.

1. Market demand based on consumers' needs and requirements through market survey.
2. Total current amounts of local production compared with actual production capacity of plants.
3. The availability of production inputs, i.e. raw materials, technology, human resources etc. that is necessary for local production.
4. Create competition between players on local markets so that to the quality and price level is positively affected in favor of consumers.

Moreover, the ministry's plan for licensing setting up production plants call private sector to take the matter seriously and act as quickly as possible to provide local markets with the needed production of different types of product and good particularly consumption goods and materials.

In addition, the plan divides the production plants according to international Classification (ISIC.1.3), of which the following groups are some of the entire sectors:
1st Group: Food Industries
2nd Group: Weaving and Wearing Industries
3rd Group: Non-Metallic Mineral Industries
4th Group: Metallic Industries
5th Group: Non-Metallic Industries
6th Group: Electrical Industries
7th Group: Machinery and Equipment Industries

It is well known that production costs play important role in both creating and influencing competition capabilities on a market therefore the ministry prefers and/or gives priority to issue licenses to those production plants and activities that their products depends on inputs available locally e.g.
human resources, raw materials, a proper technology etc. Moreover, the ministry has lays out certain terms, which keep investors or entrepreneurs under obligation to comply with, for license issuing.

The terms are:

1. Prepare a feasibility study to assure that the project contributes to or a part of the KRG's development program.
2. Use advanced production lines as well as modern machinery and equipments manufactured after 2007.
3. The quality of production is consistent with Iraqi and international standards.
4. The production activities are not harmful to the natural environment.
5. To gain license and to implement the project, the applicant have to be followed the items, which have been defined on enclosed instruction.

This should not be understood that investors and/or entrepreneurs, who wish to set up industrial plant or commercial activities, are no able to ask for licensing industrial activities that are not included in the mentioned classification groups above, but the most important issue is the licensee obligation to comply plan's terms and insure the contribution of the project to the development of the economic issues and social affairs of Kurdistan Region.
Financial Times has issued very recently a top cover of Oil and Gas case in the Kurdistan Region, in its FT special report on Monday December 10 2012 we notice that this issue is increasingly becoming the glimpse of what to call the Hope of the incredible way of achievements. This virgin territory is practically has been improved while the Giant of Oil Companies are going to have deals with KRG for long and short term agreements and all within the Iraqi constitution which allows the region to explore and drill the oil wells in the region, in the time which the region is booming, these companies are ignoring the Iraqi threats for not allowed have deals with KRG. The KRG policy has been recording improved its successful steps and successful negotiations with the Foreign companies. The No of Oil and Gas agreements are increasing and has reached to 52 agreements till the end of 2014.
The following is the data of Oil and Gas Resource is “Kurdistan Review“ 2020 Vision

Forging Ahead

While Kurdistan’s vast hydrocarbon reserves are powering economic growth, the Region is boosting its role as a key energy provider to the world’s markets.

The past year was a time of growth for oil and gas production in the Kurdistan Region. Kurdistan is home to an estimated 45 billion barrels of oil reserves as well as 165 trillion cubic feet of gas resources. Oil production in the Region is expected to rise to a record high of 900,000 bpd at the beginning of 2015 from a level of around 250,000 bpd at the beginning of 2014.

The KRG’s Ministry of Natural Resources (MNR) announced that the Kurdistan Region has exported over 34.5 million barrels of oil between January 1st and December 31st, 2014. In total, around 53 billion worth of oil has been sold to customers around the world. In addition to a recently completed pipeline that allows the Kurdistan Region to export oil independently through Turkey, the KRG plans to build a second, 1 million bpd capacity oil pipeline to transport heavy crude from Kurdistan’s northern oil fields to international markets and raise oil production to 2 million bpd by 2020. The KRG is also planning to commence gas exports to Europe in 2016. The KRG’s agreement with Turkey foresees an initial export of 4 billion cubic meters in 2017, and envision gas exports eventually climbing to 10 billion cubic meters per year by 2020.
Kurdistan Region in 2016:

The political and economic situations in the middle east have been greatly changed and due to the affects the Kurdistan region has witnessed a new era of establishment and reviewing the basic and principle methods of treatment with the new changes.

Kurdistan Region in spite of the numerosius problems surrounded the community but the good and logic treatment in dealing with them was the key to get rid of most of the Problems with the support of United States and Europe Countries and other friends.

Below I have a partial speech of PM Barzani who is pointing out to the main issues of the Region:
“One of the duties of the new cabinet will be to adopt a reconciliatory policy to settle the unresolved issues and the Region’s future with Iraq’s federal government. This includes, especially, the issue of the areas of Kurdistan outside KRG administration and the implementation of Article 140 of the Iraqi federal constitution. We will work together, in coordination with the Region's presidency, the parliament, and in cooperation with political parties, to take urgent steps to establish a negotiation council for political agreement that reflects the will of the people of Kurdistan.

The eighth cabinet will create a suitable environment to ensure that the parliament can properly monitor the government’s activities. Meanwhile, we require the trust and support of the parliament so that the government and the parliament can work together to serve the people of the Kurdistan Region. To this end, the government will be in constant communication with the parliament and its chairmanship council.

Kurdistan Region is a relatively rich region; therefore, our current objective is to achieve economic independence, continuous growth, and diversification of income sources – thus avoiding reliance on natural resources revenues alone. The government will work to develop various sectors, including agriculture, industry, trade, services, and will strive to reduce the difference in living conditions between towns in the countryside and cities.

The government will work to improve major water services, electricity, and road networks to meet the clear economic growth and increased standard of living in Kurdistan. The KRG will also promote local and foreign investment by utilizing the Region’s capabilities, materials, and human resources. This requires active work to implement decentralization, separation of powers, and reach an agreement to amend the laws.

We will pay special attention to the sectors of industry and tourism and will support the private sector to play its role in reconstruction and propelling the economic growth of Kurdistan.

The government will improve the investment framework in Kurdistan in a way to meet the social and economic development corresponding to the Region’s next phases.

In the eighth cabinet’s program, we will continue to reform the education and higher education systems by providing the needed facilities, improving academic capacity, and developing scientific research and vocational studies to create a qualified and capable workforce for the job market and reducing the rate of illiteracy in the Region.

In the health sector, we will work to adopt a more modern health system and separate public and private sector medical services. The eighth cabinet will continue to pay attention to the lives and living conditions of the families of martyrs, victims of the Anfal campaign, chemical weapons attacks, and political prisoners.

We will work to reframe the housing sector in a modern way and will work to solve housing issues, especially for low-income families.
We are proud of the security and stability that prevail in Kurdistan, despite its location in the heart of an area torn by violence, war, terror, and repression. The situation in Kurdistan has been enabled by the efforts, awareness, and conscientious efforts of the Peshmerga, police, and security forces that work for all the people of Kurdistan. Therefore, the KRG strives to improve the lives and living conditions of the Region’s armed forces and enhance their abilities and skills. Strengthening the sense of national loyalty to the armed forces will be an important task of this government.

The eighth cabinet will work to review and regulate the pension and salary system to benefit people in a fair way. It will work to establish the Kurdistan Fund for Oil Income and the Region’s Petroleum Company, as stipulated by Kurdistan Region Oil and Gas Law number 22 of 2007.

The eight cabinet will continue to develop, support, and encourage the local private sector and provide suitable conditions for foreign companies and investors in order to create job opportunities and reduce the rate of unemployment, particularly for youth and graduates of institutes and universities. The government will adopt modern operational employment policies and strive to eliminate manipulation in the private market, companies, and investment.”
How would you characterize the current investment landscape in Kurdistan?

The KRG has set up a favorable legal framework for foreign investment by adopting a new Investment Law in 2006. Thanks to this friendly investment law, the Kurdistan Region attracted over $40 billion of investment between 2006 and 2014. Our trade ties with our neighbors also improved significantly in the same period. However, the budgetary disagreements between Erbil and Baghdad, the plunge in oil prices, and the war against ISIS deeply affected our economy in 2015.
The KRG has three key objectives: create a modern economy, diversify its revenue sources, and improve its investment landscape. In order to attain these goals, the KRG announced reform packages at the beginning of this year. The KRG is committed to boosting its private sector, and diversifying its economy. Kurdistan is a virgin market that offers numerous opportunities for foreign investors. Despite all the challenges, we believe that Kurdistan will be able to successfully overcome these challenges, and we hope to see the same growth level that Kurdistan achieved between 2006 and 14 repeated over the following years.

What are the Ministry’s plans to increase the economy’s attractiveness for foreign investment?

We believe that Erbil, Slemani and Duhok are prime investment destinations. Agriculture, mining, industry and tourism are the key sectors that have the greatest potential in the Kurdistan Region in the medium and long term. The Ministry of Trade and Industry in collaboration with the Kurdistan Investment Board has an attractive plan to draw new foreign investment to the Region mainly through the creation of industrial zones. The KRG has new introduced regulations to further increase foreign investment, including more support and administrative assistance. The KRG is discussing with the World Bank, through its program in Iraq, ways to improve the investment landscape in order to achieve the targets set in “KRG Vision 2020”.

The KRG has three key objectives: create a modern economy, diversify its revenue sources, and improve its investment landscape. In order to attain these goals, the KRG announced reform packages at the beginning of this year.
What areas is the Ministry prioritizing in 2016 and beyond?

Our focus is to amend existing regulations to improve the environment in Kurdistan for doing business, and to boost trade. Our Ministry has simplified procedures so as to reduce the time needed to obtain licenses and revised the forms related to the payment of taxes and fees. We are also aiming to set up industrial zones in Kurdistan that we believe it is crucially important for the economic development of the Kurdistan Region. One of the key prioritized areas is to improve our trade ties with our neighboring countries. The latest data issued by the Department of Import and Export of the Ministry show that 3,570 licenses worth $4.5 billion were approved by the Ministry of Trade and Industry in 2015. For the first quarter of 2016, 1,276 licenses worth $467 million were approved. We would like to increase this volume in the medium term.
